INT. MAJOR CRIMES - SANDRA'S OFFICE - NIGHT

33

Sandra sits across from DEWAR LINDEN, 50s, rich douchebag, and ELAINE WALTHAM, his high priced lawyer, neither of them happy to be here.

Sc. 1
Start

WALTHAM

My client flew back from Europe...

LINDEN

Business class. First was sold out.

SANDRA

My God, that sounds unspeakable.
As long as you've made that sacrifice, maybe you can tell us why you were duking it out with Thomas Warner two days before he was murdered.

LINDEN

You're accusing me of murder?!

WALTHAM

When we leave here--which will be in thirty seconds--I'm filing a lawsuit against you, NYPD and the City. Your tenure here will be a short one. This kind of thing never happened on Eliot Delson's watch. He knew how to play ball.

She motions for Linden to get up, they're leaving.

SANDRA

I play ball, too. With the IRS, who will be calling about your client's accounting practices.

Sc. 1
End

LINDEN

You threatening me?
